

Expanded ICE Authority Affecting Refugees

Autoridad Ampliada de ICE que Afecta a Refugiados

Policy Update / Actualización de Política

Recent policy changes expand ICE authority to detain certain refugees who have not applied for permanent residency after one year.

The administration cites national security concerns, while advocates warn of potential prolonged detention and due process implications.

The policy is expected to face legal scrutiny, and its impact will depend on implementation and court decisions.

What This Means / Qué Significa

- Refugees are generally required to apply for a green card after one year
- Delays may increase vulnerability if policies change
- Each case is unique — legal advice is recommended
- Los refugiados generalmente deben solicitar la residencia después de un año
- Retrasos pueden aumentar la vulnerabilidad
- Cada caso es distinto — se recomienda asesoría legal
