PRIVACY ALERT: Sensitive Immigration Data at Risk

The Washington Post reports that representatives from the U.S. Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE) have gained access to the sensitive Executive Office for Immigration Review's Courts and Appeals System (ECAS), which holds personal records on millions of immigrants.

This has raised concerns about privacy, as the data, typically accessible to a small group, may now be used for non-immigration purposes. The growing role of DOGE within federal agencies has sparked alarm over the potential misuse of confidential immigrant information.

Stay informed about your rights to privacy and confidentiality under U.S. immigration law. Moreno Law Office in Worcester, MA, we're closely monitoring this developing situation and are committed to advocating for your rights and privacy.
